Art Enlightenment Course Introduction (Children art primer)

Art education is becoming an inevitable necessity for children, as parents have expectations in art for their kids. Parents usually neglect their children's interests, and begin in skills training too early. Art educators believe that it is not beneficial for children to be training in a specific style of painting too early. Children's early art enlightenment is very important. It aims at a child's art interests and desire to learn, aesthetic consciousness in real life and special capability like color sense and memory. It is also good for their intellectual and motor skills developments.
