

Chinese Brush Painting

Eva Leong

Eva Leong was born and raised in Shanghai, China. In 1982 she moved to New York to pursue a BFA from The Parsons School of Design. She has been teaching at the SCCS for more than fifteen years.

During the early years of training in Shanghai, Eva Leong set a strong foundation in Chinese watercolor. In subsequent years, Eva studied western approach to painting in the USA and TSLA deepened her understanding of Chinese watercolor. She successfully combines the tactile essence of Chinese watercolor with the influences of western colors and rhythms. Her work can be seen at evaleongart.com.

In this class, students will sign up for 2 hours Zoom class learning Chinese brush painting technique every Sunday except holidays, starting September 13th, 11 am to May 2021. First half-hour warm-up, lessons from 11:30-12:30, last half-hour practicing and catch-up.

Materials* from Oriental Art Supply call to ask for catalog 1-800-969-4471 info@orientalartsupply.com

- Marie's 12 colors box of Chinese watercolor set
- classroom painting set(includes: brush set, rice paper, bottle ink)

*You also could use regular watercolor or acrylic with some watercolor brush on any kind of art paper.

Zoom Meetings for this class:

<https://us02web.zoom.us/join/zoom/register/tZUsduysqj0rE9woW1AHTnaTCAmBRBZ5p8Kk>

Chinese Watercolor Painting looks simple but requires various strokes to bring out the essence of the subject. You need mindfulness to feel the energy of an object and to prepare your brush to convey that energy. In the class, you will learn how to do the various strokes to express both the form and the spirit of objects. You also will learn how to prepare your brush by “tuning” the colors. Eva will guide you to be in the moment while you are painting.